

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A printing control system is provided for producing prints from image data, which includes a PDL data creating process for creating PDL data, a platemaking data creating
5 process for creating platemaking data based on the PDL data created in the PDL data creating process, and a printing process. In these PDL data creating process, platemaking data creating process and printing process, intents of color tone control are conveyed by representative
10 point information including information on positions and color tones of representative points.